

NÜRNBERG

TOYS AND TRAINS / ALBRECHT DÜRER / LEBKUCHEN / CHRISTKINDLSMARKT / ROSTBRATWURST

Cityscape of Nuremberg with the Federal Labour Office in the foreground.

Nuremberg

Nuremberg Fast Facts

Franconian Metropolis

Population: around 500,000

Federal State: Bavaria

Area: 186.5 square kilometers (72 square miles)

Key economic activities: communication and multimedia, traffic engineering and logistics, energy and environment, power electronics and service industry; 50 specialist trade fairs and conferences, including the world's largest specialist trade fair for toys.

Tourism: more than 2.5 million overnight visitors annually

Universities:

Friedrich-Alexander-Universität Erlangen-Nürnberg (FAU) is one of the largest universities in Germany with more than 33,000 students. The universities of the cities of Erlangen and Nürnberg were united in 1961.

Georg Simon Ohm University of Applied Science: 10,500 students

Sister City in the U.S.: Atlanta, Georgia, since 1998

Diminutive though its trademark sausage may be, Nuremberg offers visitors and residents alike heaping platefuls when it comes to its vibrant cultural life, fascinating history, world-famous festivals, nearby outdoor recreation, and other aspects of its high quality-of-life. As Bavaria's second largest city, the center of a metropolitan area of some 2.5 million people, Nuremberg is the economic and cultural hub of the Middle Franconian region, easily reachable from Munich (106 miles) and Frankfurt (140 miles).

So, whether you would like to meet the Christmas Angel, see medieval toys, experience how Dürer lived, or learn more about why the Nuremberg bratwurst is so small—the Franconian metropolis is waiting for you!